It was with great difficulty that the Battery was kept from refusing to obey orders at the regular weekly dril. Saturday night. The prevailing discontent was openly manifested in the presence of the officers.

After the drill a committee called on Capt. Alfred Russell and a hot discussion followed, and the committee retired without obtaining satisfactory assurances. Discontent is likely to bear fruit next Saturday night in an open refusal to drill. The men have not yet decided as to what plan they will follow, but it is generally understood among them that a fight of some kind will be made. At the close of the strike the men expected to draw their pay, about $50 to each man, without delay.

After the wedding, Jennie says, her husband lived with his wife's mother. Mrs. Mary Hunt, of $21 Stags street; up to a month ago. Then he suddenly disappeared. If her story is true, he must have left her shortly before he married the other girl.

"I did not see John from the time he ran away until Sunday night," said Jennie in court this morning, where she was prosecuting her husband for simple assault. "Then I net him only a block away from his home. He was with this woman here who claims to be his wife, his mother and a man named John Doutrick. I asked him why he had deserted me, and instead of replying, ne struck me.

"I never married her, Judge," put in Dillman. "The only wife I ever had it was a mock marriage," explained it was a mock marriage," explained Jennie, "and said that the minister was a fraud who had helped to put up the trick on me. But my mother witnessed the marriage, and she can swear to it."

As the woman had no witnesses who had seen the alleged assault, that case was dismissed, but Justice Watson told her to come around to-morrow with her mother, and get a warrant in the other matter.

"We are not afraid of the temperance cranks," remarked a liquor-dealer, "so long as we have the Mayor and License Committee on our side." That was a shrewd move of ours in getting him to send that communication to the Council. It was only a bluft, you see. He had to do something, because he expects a re-election, and most of the temperance cranks are in his party.

"It had just the effect we intended it should. It made the cranks think Mayor Dally was with them, when it's just the conirary. He'll be with them on paper only, see,"

Another saloon-keeper offered this information:

Another saloon-keeper offered this information:

"The whole thing will end in a farce, as usual. You see, the temperance folks began on poor Mike Wheian because his saloon is opposite the Mayor's home. If you watch the case you'll see Wheian turned down on the Mayor's account. That will be the way the first case will end, and the temperance movers expect us to get frightened and quit. That's why Wheian is jumped on first."

A meeting is to be held to-night at Temperance Hall of the people who are favoring the crussue. At that time a line of action will be laid out. It is understood that a sermon against the saloons will be delivered in one of the churches every Sunday night.

Artificial Glaciera.

An excellent object lesson has been given by Herr Koch, the German physicist, who wished to illustrate the formation of glaciers to his students. He took a square tray, having a sloping gutter, down which yellow pitch regutter, down which vellow pitch, re-sembling colophony, which, like ice, lis plastic under pressure and brittle under tension, was allowed to flow, the gutter being first likel with very hot pitch, so as to give the main flow a better hold on the sides. Transverse flasures, like the crevices in a glacier, appear in the middle of the stream, and smaller ones join them from the edges. Where the bed widens longitudinal crevices are produced.

Berlioz.

Heritos was made miserable by his wife, according to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. He married Miss Smithson, Democrat. He married Miss Smithson, an actress many years younger than himself. She had prolonged fits of jeal-ousy and ill temper, ruined him by her theatrical ventures and finally fell from a carriage and broke her leg, thus ending her artistic career. Berlioz bore with her in patience until she finally left him. He was a tall man, of stern aspect and very dignified. In spite of his immense musical abilities as a composer, he could play no instrument except the guitar, and that very badly.
